CHAMPS HERE SUNDAY

New Pitcher will Try to Break Sabbath Day Hoodoo.

The Youngstown aggregation will drop in tomorrow and play a two-days series with the Lime Burners. On this occasion however, the Lime Burners are out for revenge and promise the fans that there will be a reversal of affairs.

It is probable that Compton and Smith will twirl in the games here. Doe Blough, the newest recruit on Drumm's pitching squad, will work in Sunday's games and endeavor to break up the Sunday hoodoo. RAIN RECORD BREAKER

Almost Three Inches Fall in About an Hour.

Literal Cloud-Burst Visits Marion Friday Afternoon—West End Suffers Most.

For the second time within a week Marion's sewers were choked and the streets were converted into a veritable lake by the heavy rain of Friday afternoon. The clouds hung ominously low and the rain fell in torrents flooding everything.

On West Center and Church streets the sewers were not of sufficient capacity to carry off the water and the streets were flooded making them impassable for pedestrians and for a time holding up the street railway service. The cellars of a number of West End business blocks were flooded and a great deal of damage resulted. The rain was one of the heaviest that has fallen in the city for several years. According to the records of Weather Observer Raffenberger, a little less than three inches of water fell during the hour which the storm lasted.

Probably the greatest damage was suffered by the farmers. The wheat which is just now ripening was beaten down by driving rain and hundreds of acres of the grain were so thoroughly devastated that it will hardly be worth while for the farmers to attempt to cut it. The country streams were swollen and the lowlands completely flooded.

For several hours following the rain Center and Church streets between Olney avenue and Garden st. were completely submerged. Sections of Lee street were flooded several streets in the East End were submerged.

Sewer Superintendent Blum will start at once cleaning city drains to prevent a recurrence of the floods.

The Nation of Shopkeepers.

Napoleon must have been right after all. We are a nation of shopkeepers. There is nothing in the shop we are not ready to sell at a price, says the London Saturday Review. We would not doubt sell the Great Seal if we could get a good enough offer from Mr. Pierpont Morgan. Shakespeare follows, first editions of Walton, the portraits of Reynolds, of Romney—these and any other national heirlooms, only given a fat enough offer, we are happy to part with to any foreign nation that has the taste and money to buy them. We can put them up as coolly as Charles Surface did his forebears.

The Brute.

"I do everything I possibly can to make your daughter happy." "You do, to hear you tell it." "Well, what on earth do I do to make her unhappy?" "Well, some nights you are gone half the night and other nights you don't stir away from home."

Crowd of 200 Enjoy Frolic in the Flood—Scene is One Rarely Witnessed in City.

People living on West Church street between Blaine avenue and Windsor street enjoyed all the pleasure of a summer resort during two hours or more following the heavy rain of Friday afternoon. The water was several feet in depth and while it remained furnished a place of frolic for residents of the vicinity.

During the two hours following the rain, almost 200 people, mostly children whose ages ranged from two years up to 35, converted the street into a bathing beach. The smaller of the children, mere babes, were in charge of their fathers, who rolled their trousers up above their knees in order to take the little ones out into the center of the temporary lake.

Some of the younger boys, attired in old clothing, swam back and forth over the flooded district. The majority of the youngsters, however, put in their time splashing and paddling. The scene was one which is rarely ever witnessed in the heart of the city of Marion.
